

If the user enters an incorrect password, the number of attempts left decreases by one, starting from three. If the number attempts less than one, then they will be locked out. If the password inputted is correct, then they are logged in.

